Summer Music Resources for Educators!

Keep your students playing music this summer for a better return to class in the fall. Explore our collection of resources, including a list of summer camps, a message from Chris White, and a letter from our team. We have also provided a sample letter for music parents and additional fun ideas to stay active in music this summer.

Additional Fun Ideas to Stay Active in Music This Summer

- Create a weekly practice routine (even 10–15 minutes a day keeps skills strong).
- Learn a favorite song from a movie, video game, or popular music.
- Play duets or small ensembles with friends from band or orchestra.
- Start a small neighborhood band or string group and perform for family or neighbors.
- Attend a summer band or orchestra camp.
- Take private lessons to work on skills and get ahead for next school year.
- Record themselves playing and track improvement over the summer.
- Perform at family gatherings, church, or community events.
- Volunteer to help organize or sort music in their school's band or orchestra room.
- Join a local community band, youth orchestra, or summer ensemble.
- Sight-read new music each week just for fun.
- Try improvising or composing their own short piece.
- Attend live concerts in the community or local summer music festivals.
- Play along with recordings of professional orchestras or bands.
- Participate in an online music challenge or practice streak.
- Teach a younger sibling or friend a few notes or rhythms.
- Explore a second instrument or percussion for fun.
- Prepare audition material early for next school year's ensembles.

Fun Motivation Ideas

- Set a personal summer music goal (learn 3 new songs, master scales, etc.).
- Create a summer practice chart with rewards for consistency.
- Have a "mini recital" at home at the end of summer.
